Online redressal of pay issues for GREF

Times News Network

Pune: Over 35,000 officers and personnel of the General Reserve Engineering Force (GREF) who work in far-flung and border areas of the country now have online access to their salary account details and an online mechanism to resolve any related grievances.

The GREF is a unit of the Border Roads Organisation (BRO), which is responsible for building roads and allied infrastructure in varied terrains and inhospitable border areas.

The Pay Accounts Office (GREF), located at Dighi

Camp near Pune, handles the salaries, allowances and related matters of all these personnel. It is controlled by Indian Defence Accounts Services (IDAS) officers.

On Friday, R K Nayak, principal controller of defence accounts (border roads), launched a dynamic website of the pay accounts office in the presence of senior IDAS officers Suchindra Misra and A K Tiwari and GREF commandant Col N M Chandrana.

Deputy controller of defence accounts Priyanka Chandra told TOI, "The new website has got the latest interactive features, wherein GREF officers and personnel can download and view their pay slips and Form 16, and can register their grievances, if any, related to pay and allowances."

She added that the website will also have the latest government circulars and orders related to salary and allowance, income tax and the national pension system rules. The website comes as a step towards developing greater synergy between the defence accounts department and the BRO, she said.

Chandra said, "The GREF officers and personnel are usually posted in far-off border areas in the North East, the Leh-Ladakh region, and at the India-China border, among others. Securing quick and easy access to their pay and allowance details was a big issue in the absence of such an online portal."

Each GREF officer and personnel will have a user ID and password to access the salary and allowance details on the website. They will be able to see their monthly salary slips, general provident fund (GPF) status, and pension and income tax deduction details. The complaints will be addressed by the pay accounts office here, she added.
